BORAH FAVORS IMPEACHMENT OF DAUGHERTY

Renew Attacks to Get Attorney General Out of Cabinet

QUESTION SLEMP

Coolidge's Secretary Promises to Appear Before Senate Oil Committee On Monday

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 23—Leading the renewed attack upon Attorney General Daugherty today in the Senate, Senator Borah, Republican, declared he was willing to help lay the foundation for impeachment to get Daugherty out of the Cabinet

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb 23—E Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, agreed today to appear before the Senate Oil Committee Monday It is understood he will be questioned about the extent of any communication he had with government officials and others regarding oil inquiry since the beginning of the startling disclosures a month ago

Mr Slemp visited Palm Beach last December at the time former Secretary Publisher of the Washington Post, tary Fall and Edward B McLean, asked if he talked with them about the oil scandal

Other members of the committee who concurred in the decision to call the President's secretary said he might be questioned also as to whether he had talked with government officials or others mentioned in the oil lease since the beginning of the sensational disclosures which followed the testimony of Archie Roosevelt on January 22

Apparently the news that he would be called came as no surprise to Mr Slemp It was understood that he had been advised several days ago that some members of the committee were of the opinion that he should be questioned

SENATE KILLS ANTI RACING BILL THURSDAY 24-11

FRANKFORT, Ky, Feb 23—By a vote of 24 to 14, the State Senate Thursday killed the Bennett anti racing bill, which had passed the House, 56 to 38, thereby bringing to an end the long drawn out contest against the pari-mutuels for the session of 1924 The vote was for the rejection of a minority report, presented by Senator Walter G Dyeus, of Benton, the only one of the seven members of the committee who favored the bill

It was only after an all day discussion by both sides and parliamentary manouvering on the part of those favoring the bill to put off a decision, that the vote finally was reached at 3 40 o'clock The Senate voted down a motion of Senator J W James to adjourn shortly before acting on the report, which, as Lieut Governor H H Denhardt pointed out, was decisive and final action on the matter

DAILY NEWS WANT ADS BRING SPEEDY RESULTS

That Daily News want ads bring results is a statement that is almost proverbial but in most cases the result do not come until the ad has been published A pleasing exception to this rule was experienced by a patron today.

He had lost a raccoon skin—why he wanted it back is a mystery—and sought the aid of the classified columns After much pains, he composed carefully worded ad the general import of which that the return of the hide was desirable The ad was placed on the copy hook and that is as far as it got A member of the News mechanical force had already found the missing article and was glad to have the advertiser the quarter.

CAN'T DOWN MAUGHAN; HE'LL TRY DAWN-DUSK FLIGHT AGAIN

MILLA FIELD, Ivy, Feb 22—Training and still love upon Lieutenant Russell L Maughan world wide fame as the army's aviator ace

Two other qualities persistence and self confidence—are expected to Maughan add American aviation fresh honors within a few months

For Maughan, despite his failure on two attempts to fly from New York to San Francisco between dawn and dusk, is now getting ready for a third crack at this record. The army air service just authorized Maughan to repeat his attempt in June

Already, Maughan, winner of the 1922 Pulitzer trophy race, with four German planes to his credit in the World War, is at work on plans for—

It's looking after details ahead of attempt July 9 Ten days later he time that wins the flight, he declares Once the plane rolls out of the hangar and on hop off, there's not much you can do except trust to luck Its useless to worry about materials and machinery when you're up You can only have faith then

Maughan leaves for McCook field, at Dayton, O shortly to begin testing the Curtiss pursuit plane he will use in the flight This new plane will have a huge gas tank installed and it will enable Maughan to make the flight with three refueling stops Dayton, St Joseph, Mo, and Cheyenne, Wyo, instead of four stops as planned on the previous flight

A clogged feed pipe forced Maughan down at St, Joseph, Mo, on his first attempt covered 1981 miles of the 2640 mile trip ahead of schedule—but he was halted at Rock Springs Wyo, because his plane leaked oil

BRIEF COLD SNAP BRINGS FURTHER REQUESTS FOR AID

The recent cold snap which lasted only two or three days brought its quota of requests for relief from poor families whose coal supplies had become exhausted The city furnished a few loads of coal to unfortunate victims of the wintry blasts and some relief work was done by the charitable organizations

Sellers claims the shooting was a result of an attack made by the Littrells after the officers had arrested John Littrell for having whiskey in his possession

They made a raid in Harlan country, near Rose Hill this afternoon, he explained in which Earin Long, David Eads, a brother of Long, and another man were captured, and a distilling apparatus and whiskey were confiscated

On their return, they met John Littrell in a wagon R S Saylor states that Littrell took a bottle, apparently containing whiskey, from his pocket and shook it at them They placed him under arrest

When they had proceeded still further in this direction, Sellers states that Squire Littrell and his sons met them in the road and that the former drew a shotgun They took the weapons of the men from them and considered the matter settled

When the officers had proceeded as far as Johnson Gibson's home, a point about six miles from Middlesboro, he says that the Littrells again made their appearance

Details of what followed were not disclosed by the officers There was a fight in which Squire Littrell and his son, John were killed, and W B Saylor and Roy Littrell were mortally wounded

Saylor was shot through the stomach and the left chest, according to his brother, R S Saylor and the officers say that Squire Littrell did the shooting Neither of the officers would state who fired the shots which killed the two Littrells

Millard Overton, one of the officers was shot through the hand He likewise would make no statement as to the occurrence

Reports from the vicinity of the tragedy are to the effect that John Littrell counts patrol, was riding in a wagon down the road and that the men continuing the officers ran into the vehicle This led to the arrest of John Littrell and the trouble between the other Littrell boy and his father, then ran

Tob Bishop was also a member of the officers party but was not wounded The part that he took in the shooting is not known

Sellers and R S Saylor came to the city hall about 4 30 with reports of the tragedy Upon investigation, Coroner H P Ball had them placed under arrest for alleged participation in the fatal shooting R S Saylor was greatly affected by the probable fatal wounding of his brother

All of the participants in the affair are well known in Middlesboro and in this section Squire Littrell and his sons are well known residents of Gibson Station vicinity W B Saylor, federal prohibition officer, has won great renown in this and nearby states for his fearlessness as an officer. D. C Sellers, deputy constable, lives in Middlesboro He has taken part in a number of liquor raids during the past year in this vicinity R S Saylor, a brother of the federal officer, was deputized as an officer for the raid W B Saylor and Roy Littrell were taken to the Brashear Brummett hospital after the shooting At both hospital physicians state that Saylor is the more seriously wounded. They say, however, that there is a chance that both may live

A Thought

Favor is deceitful, and beauty is vain.—Prov. 31:30.

If thou marry beauty, thou bindest thyself all thy life for that which, perchance, will neither last nor please thee one year.—Sir Walter Raleigh

BETTER COURTS

In a city that has been trying to reform its judicial procedure and bring its court calendar up to date, the judges report that the average number of cases disposed of by each judge during the September term of 1923 was 8 per cent greater than in 1922. The criminal docket is now up to date and it is expected that by the middle of the present year equity cases will be heard within three months of th time they are filed, and jury cases at least within eight months. Says the Hopkinsville New Era: "The successful operation of the new system is attributed to two things: Splendid co operation of the judges, and extraordinary co-operation on the part of the entire bar."

This is excellent, as far as it goes. The progress made is evidence that further progress is possible in the city referred to, and in every other city that has been suffering from the delayed justice that means justice denied.

The incomprehensible thing about American courts has been the fact that with all the honesty and ability represented in them, they have been so cumbered with red tape and barnacles and so tolerant of technical obstructions and delays granted for trivial reasons that they have fallen quite out of step with American progress.

Business men have not been able to understand why priciples of business efficiency were not applied to the administration of justice. Professional men outside of the law, especially in the sister professions of medicine and journalism, have been impatient of its farces. Happily the legal profession itself is waking up at last and adding to the integrity of the courts some long needed efficiency and "pep."—Bowling Green Times-Journal.

MOTORISTS TO HELP MAKE ROADS SAFE

Major A. A. Stewart, of New York, recently formed what is known as the Argus Association, composed of motorists all over the country who are willing to take pledges of the association as to safe driving. These pledges are:

1—To be always ready for any emergency by keeping my eyes on the road and my thoughts on what I am doing.

2—To particularly watch out for curves, crossings and bridges.

3—To always keep my car under perfect control.

4—To keep the brakes and steering gear in good working order.

5—Never to stop or slow down without signaling to the driver of the car behind.

6—Never to take a turn without care and warning to drivers of other cars.

7—Never to cut off another car unless I am positive that there is ample space.

8—Never to stop in a narrow place on the road if by doing so I inconvenience that drivers of other cars.

9—Never to start out from the curb without making sure that the road is clear.

10—To consider the safety and comfort of the other car's occupants as well as my own.

11—Never to try to save a minute or two of time if by so doing I am risking the life of a human being.

12—To obey all the rules of the road as laid down by law or common sense.

13—If I do not drive my own car, to require my chauffeur or members of my family to live up to these principles.

14—To be always careful, vigilant, courteous, and thoughtful—a gentleman of the highway.

More than 12,000 motorists are stated to have taken the pledge.

COLLECTION OF BACK FINES

We are informed that the city is very busy these days collecting back fines. A number of persons are behind on their police court fines, it seems, some of whom have had the bad manners to leave town or otherwise inconvenience the city in the meanwhile.

The law on this subject has not been made clear to us, but it would seem that there should be some way by which collection of police court fines might be assured before the culprit is turned loose. If there is no such way we can see no use of going through the formalities of arrest and trial.

These persons with unpaid fines are turned loose, we understand, while the city hires men to clean out the canal, to clean the streets and alleys, and other such work. No disposal of garbage is provided for because the city can not afford it.

How would it be to have these persons who make the mistake of getting into police court when they have no money to pay fines because they have already spent it on moonshine liquor or its equivalent—how would it be for them to stay with the city until they have worked out their fine? Not that this is a new idea, but isn't it worth consideration?

It seems hard enough to get a conviction on any score in Middlesboro any way. For the ones who are convicted to be set loose without paying a fine to cover the expenses is disheartening to law makers at least.

Berton Braley's Poem

TIMES CHANGE

Old days, old ways,
They had their charm,
Wrapped in a haze
Gold-hued and warm,
They drift across our memory
As "those good times that used to be."

Old Days, old ways,
We sometimes sigh
A wishful wish
For days gone by;
Yet, were they subject to recall,
Perhaps we'd like them not at all.

Old days, old ways,
They change and go,
And we change with them
And we know
How different they would appear—
Old days, old ways—if they were here!

Old days, old ways,
Posterity
Will envy you
And envy me
And say of times we live in now,
"Old ways and days were best, somehow."

TOURIST GOES 1,000 MILES OUT OF WAY

Forced to Turn Back From Lexington Because of Impassable Route This Way

LEXINGTON, Feb. 21.—The value of an open road through to Florida was well illustrated Tuesday when A. H. Voris, of Indianapolis, a member of the Hoosier Motor club called at the Lexington Automobile club in the Lafayette hotel, and was routed north to Cincinnati and east to Washington thereby going nearly 1000 miles out of the way and losing about five days time and the contingent expense.

The tourist came from Indianapolis to Louisville, where he was told that sections of the Jackson Highway between that city and Nashville were impassable, and he was advised to proceed to Lexington. He gleaned the information from secretary Fred K. Augsburg, of the Automobile club, that the short scenic route south of this city was also impassable, and rather than ship his car to Barbourville, he turned back toward the north, and when he arrives in Washington he will still be 100 miles further from his destination, Miami, than when he was in this city.

"We have several cases similar to this every day," said W. C. G. Hobbs, president of the club, and a few Lexington merchants realize that they are losing thousands of dollars each week through the roads south of here being in impassable condition.

Because of unavoidable delays the road south through Knoxville and Asheville will not be open until April 15 but we hope to catch a good portion of the return tourist business from Florida. The highway will be signposted the entire distance, and with some good advertising will develop into Lexington's biggest financial asset to local business men."

Former Local Boy Winning Considerable Note as Poet

Joseph Foreman Faulconer of Tulsa, Okla, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foulconer of this city and a graduate of Middlesboro High School, is winning considerable note in the literary world. We are printing below a poem of unusual quality written by Mr. Faulconer. Several others will follow later.

SEPULCHER
(By Joseph Foreman Faulconer)

The jonquils in my garden are all black.
My vines have perished, the roses wither.
Buds wane in youth, and the honey bee seeks richer pastures for its labor,

The yellow butterflies that hourly played above the tendrils of some flower dusting their wings
have flown to sweeter stems,

Dear, the garden you tended so patiently filling it with perfume and light is the trysting place of chirping insects swooping bats
and wet green croaking frogs.

The grosbeak's home in the gnarled oak is deserted. His yellow jacket with the black buttons
no longer flashes through the green.
I head no more the shuttle of his throat
tuning to sing a lullaby for you.

The black beetle stirs
metallic wings at twilight.
They are the drums
by which the night bird sings.
And I hear,

the reedy tremulous notes
exuding from the katydid's faint silver flute.
It lifts on the air, incessantly.
In the garden
a whir of wings.
And the shrill overture
of the insect symphony.
I hear,

the wind's Aeolian harp singing in the trees
a song
for you unseen;
accompanied by the willow's wail
and the twinkle of the cricket's tambourine.

My punishment is fitting and deserved
Loving you, thy departure seems a myth.
I follow the white path
to your cold inland home
where I bade thee farewell.
But thou art gone,

and my heart
turns cold at your sepulcher looming in the dusk.
My soul is filled with an imperishable gloom
pale in the night
as the moon-flowers that decorously bloom by your tomb
in the shadows, untouched by the light.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton
NO. 3 THE DUTCH GIANT

Nancy and Nick were hiding behind a big log in Beanstalk Land, for they had seen a giant coming clap, clap, cladder, cladder in big wooden shoes.

They were afraid of being stepped upon, so they hid.

But what did the giant do but sit right down on the big log when he reached it.

He was a Dutch Giant and he wore, loose, baggy trousers with great patches and a funny short coat. And his pockets were big enough to hold a windmill.

"Oh, where can my leedle dog have gone?" he panted. "I haf hunted and hunted and cannot find him. His ears were so cute and short and his tail was so cute and long, once. Oh, my, poor leedle dog! He must be lost!"

Suddenly the Twins heard a noise like the stamping of a hundred cows, and out from some huge bushes rushed a creature that looked as though one of the Rocky Mountains had grown a crop of hair and decided to make a journey. And it was making a noise much, much louder than the wooden shoes had gone.

"Oh, there you are!" cried the Dutch Giant happily. "Where have you been, you leedle rascal? Come here, Snap." And he cracked his fingers like thunder. The Twins saw the dog coming right at them. They weren't a bit frightened, for Silver Wing had told them that Beanstalk Land was a perfectly safe place, and only jolly giants lived there. But she hadn't said a word about the jolly giant's dog, and it might be possible that Snap would mistake them for wood mice or something that Dutch dogs were specially fond of.

"Quick!" whispered Nick. "Jump into the giant's pocket."

So holding tight to the cloth of scrambled into one of his big square pockets.

But troubles were not over!

Snap was hungry and started to smell around his master's clothes for a piece of weeny or bologna.

And the first thing Nancy and Nick knew, a great wet nose began to sniffle and sniffle all over them and blow its hot breath down like a porpoise into the giant's pocketh.

"Oh, goodness!" gasped Nancy.

"Jimmy!" gasped Nick.

"Ah, ha! You got fooled that time!" roared the funny giant. "The other is the one! That was the empty pocket! See, I know you, Mister Curiosity!"

And the giant put his hand into his pocket where the Twins were—and found—what do you think! Nancy and Nick, of course! And he pulled them out and set them on his knee.

"Fee, fi, fum, fo,
"Who are you, I'd like to know," he cried, his eyes as round as dollars. "Get away, Snap."

"We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins," shouted Nick as loudly as he could.

"You don't say!" declared the giant. "Well, well, well! You shall home with me go. I'd like first rate to have two twins for pets. Come, Snap!"

And off they started.

Tell Me, My Heart, If This Be Love

When Delia on the plain appears,
Awed by a thousand tender fears
I would approach, but dare not move.
Tell me, my heart, if this be love?

Whenever she speaks, my ravish'd ear
No other voice than hers can hear,
No other wit but her approve.
Tell me, my heart, if this be love?

If she some other youth commend,
Though I was once his fondest friend,
His instant enemy I prove:
Tell me, my heart, if this be love?

When she is absent, I no more
Delight in all that pleased before—
The clearest spring, or shadiest grove:
Tell me, my heart, if this be love?

When fond of power, of beauty vain,
Her nets she spread for every swain,
I strove to hate, but vainly strove:
Tell me, my heart, if this be love?

—Lord Lyttelton.

DAILY BIBLE MESSAGE BY RADIO NOW PLANNED

"A message from God through the press and by radio will reach a larger audience than any thing else, short of a passage of Scripture written in starlight across the skies," says a notice from the Radio Bible Service Bureau announcing that a sermonette will be broadcast daily.

The object of the bureau is to give the world daily a message from the word of God by radio—to inculate right thinking and right living, to lift up and to bring the human thought more in accord with the divine and in this way develop a greater reverence for the Creator and make the world a better world in which to live.

A Long Time Investment- Dodge Bros. Motor Car

A product honestly built, modestly marketed---and genuinely endorsed by its users everywhere.

We quote only a few of the many Middlesboro endorsers:

W. C. STAIR, manager of the Kentucky Utilities Co., Inc.: "Our Dodge Brothers truck is entirely satisfactory."

JUDGE J. L. MANRING of the J. L. Manring Co.: "I have owned a Dodge sedan and coupe for over a year and find both very satisfactory. The upkeep and gas consumption of both are very low. Although I have driven about 6000 miles in each of my Dodge cars I have had few occasions for repairs."

DR. E. L. CAMP, leading optometrist of Southeastern Kentucky: "There is no better car than the Dodge for the money. I think the Dodge is fine and by fine I mean good service which is the highest compliment anyone can pay a car."

ERNEST WARREN, chief dispatcher of the L. & N.: "I think that the Dodge Brothers' car is one of the best cars made for the money. I am perfectly satisfied with my car and whenever I am in the market for a new car it will be another Dodge."

J. R. HOE & SONS, manufacturers of the Hoe-Hyatt truck: "Our Dodge Brothers' truck has given excellent service. We have had to pay out very little money for repairs since we purchased the truck. When we buy another truck it will be a Dodge Brothers truck."

DR. J. H. S. Morison of Cumberland Gap, says: "The Dodge Car is the best there is. I have had no trouble and no repair bills to pay. That is what I call ideal service. As for recommending the car, I can truthfully subscribe to anything you say about Dodge."

W. B. FUGATE, manager of the Middlesboro Hardware Co., says: "As far as I know the Dodge Car is O. K. I know one thing certain that it never took me anywhere but that it brought me back. If I were buying a new car I would buy a Dodge."

EDW A. GIVENS, owner of the News Stand Co., says: "Had my Dodge Brothers Car over five years and from the way it is running it looks like I'll have it another five years."

WALTER R. HOE, president of the J. R. Hoe & Sons: "My car has been driven 24,000 miles and no mechanical trouble whatever. The 'son-of-a-gun' is still going good."

HARRY MOSS: "I suppose I shall never buy any more Dodge Brothers Cars. The reason for this is that the performance of the Dodge Brothers Car which I now own indicates not only an indefinite life but minimum maintenance cost over that time."

"I believe in Dodge Brothers' cars. My car has been entirely satisfactory. During the 18 months which I have used it I have paid out no money for repairs. I have driven 8,000 miles without a puncture."

Warm, yet sincere, words of commendation for many years of splendid service to these owners. Thousands of others all over the world endorse Dodge Brothers Car no less enthusiastically.

Recent extensive improvements have added greatly to the appearance and riding comfort of the car---the OLD DEPENDABILITY remains.

A careful analysis of the Car can only result in the conclusion that it is in truth "A LONG-TIME INVESTMENT."

SAVED SICK SPELLS

Black-Draught Found Valuable by a Texas Farmer, Who Has Known Its Usefulness Over 30 Years.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for years—I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. H. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out from here on Route 3.

"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it.

"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble.

"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."

Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.

This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs.

Be sure to get the genuine, Thedford's.

FIRST 1924 NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT PUT IN FIELD BY SINGLE TAXERS

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 21.— The first presidential nominee for the 1924 race has stolen a lap on the field.

He is William J. Wallace, named as the standard bearer of the Commonwealth Land Party, formerly the Single Tax Party. His running mate is J. C. Lincoln of Cleveland, selected for the vice presidency without any opposition.

At the party's national convention, in the Engineering Societies Building in New York, delegates from 14 states, among them Alabama, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Oklahoma and Rhode Island—named their candidates, drew up their platform, and started right out after votes while the members of the major parties are still juggling around for delegates to the nominating conventions!

They expect to campaign in 35 states and poll 750,000 votes!

Which is some improvement over the several hundred votes tallied in 1912, when Wallace ran for the first time.

It was his debut in politics, and his party's entry into the national field.

"We called it the Land Value Party then," he recounts smiling, "and had less than 15 workers in the group. We couldn't get our names printed on the ballots. So we wrote them in ourselves.

"But this year it will be different."

Wallace is a kindly man, 64 years old, who is a manufacturer of electric motors, when he isn't studying up on the land question.

He was born on the West Side of New York, and started work when he was 15.

"I never gave politics much thought," he went on. "I was too busy making a living. But the panic of '73, unemployment and poverty with its consequences, set me thinking about the precariousness of our situations.

"I wanted to know what brought such conditions about. I wanted to find out how they could be avoided.

"But I couldn't find out what I was looking for. My teacher at night school couldn't help me. The books I read didn't enlighten me, until one day I ran across Henry George's 'Progress and Poverty.'

"I found an answer. It lay in the solution of our land problem.

"From 1883, when I first read the book, until 1910 I did nothing politically. I voted, of course, casting my ballots for those candidates who I thought to be best.

"But in 1910 a group headed by Joseph F. Darling, a former assistant district attorney of New York, got together at a conference and founded the Land Value Tax Party.

"I was named its candidate in the 1912 election.

"Darling's death in 1916 put a crimp to the party's activities in the next presidential campaign.

"But in 1920 we put up candidates in 16 states. The name of the party had been changed to the Single Tax Party, and Robert C. Macauley of Philadelphia was named the presidential candidate.

"We polled some 50,000 votes!

"But we are going to get many, many more this year."

The name was changed again.

"For the Commonwealth Land Party," says Wallace, "better explains our idea than the Single Tax."

This party would free the land of the country from private ownership, and by renting it lift the burden of taxation from the people.

"All evils arising out of our unjust economic conditions," says its platform, "such as business depressions, hard times, unemployment, poverty and the fear of poverty, bad housing conditions due to these conditions are the result? (illegible) conditions and the crime, vice and diseases due to these conditions are the result of the private ownership of the earth and the appropriation of its products by the few.

"War and strife, now and always due to economic maladjustment, would disappear with the elimination of private ownership of land, which has ever been the basis and the cause of all the world's economic troubles."

MADISON MAY GET ROAD TO RVER

Understood From Meetings of New Commission Through Highways Will Be Completed First

RICHMOND, Feb. 21.—News comes from [illegible] that there is a splendid possibility of the completion of concreting of the Richmond and Lexington pike, on to the river—the boundary line between the two counties. Seven miles of concrete have just recently been finished. This much of the road is pronounced by many as a fin a highway as could be found anywhere. The remaining four miles to the river is about as bad a road as can be traveled outside of the mountains.

The New State Highway Commission has been meeting at Frankfort since its appointment. It is understood that its plans for coming work contemplate completion of through highways first, if possible. Among them is the Dixie Highway, of which the Richmond-Lexington road is an important section. On these through highways the government pays half the cost and the state a quarter of the county a quarter. That is the system by which the concreting of seven miles of the Lexington pike was accomplished. Madison put up a trifle over $50,000 and got this splendid road—without a bond issue or raising the tax. Now it appears that if she will put up about $25,000 more she can have the road finished to the river, as the state and the federal government will pay their proportion of the cost as set out above on this road.

Every man, woman and child who ever has to ride over this road will favor such action by the Fiscal Court of Madison county, if the proposition is put up to it. Many who are in touch with the situation believe that it soon will be. Joe S. Boggs is still State Highway Engineer. His friends assert that he has made a splendid record, the attacks of certain Louisville newspapers to the contrary, notwithstanding. Mr. Boggs is of course very anxious to do everything possible for the roads of his home county, and with the indication that the new Commission will favor completion of existing through highway projects first, the presumption is strong that Madison county may soon have the opportunity to say whether or not this road shall be finished—and it is the most frequently traveled thoroughfare by far in the county.

R. M. WATT WILL HEAD PINEVILLE KIWANIANS

PINEVILLE, Feb. 21.—R. M. Watt, head of the Kentucky Utilities company in this district, will head the Kiwanis Club for the rest of 1924, succeeding the Rev. H. J. Brazleton, who resigned at the meeting Tuesday night. Mr. Watt, who was vice president, will be succeeded by Marshall Cook, present secretary and treasurer. Mr. Cook's successor will be elected at the next meeting of the executive committee.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the Strollers of the University of Kentucky will be here sometime in May to present their annual play. The production this year is Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" and reports indicate that a well-balanced cast has been selected.

THANKS LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS FOR HELPING SICK STUDENTS

The Woman's Club, Kiwanis Club, church societies, Elks' Club and various Middlesboro organizations which have sent gifts to the sick students at Lincoln Memorial University have received very gracious letters from Dr. R. O. Matthews, president of the University, thanking them for their solicitude and their gifts. The situation at the university is reported much relieved now. A capable corps of nurses and doctors are in charge of the students and no new cases have developed recently.

ASKS COOPERATION HERE IN BETTER MAILING WEEK

Postmaster John M. Miller requests that the public give full cooperation in making "Better Mailing Week" a success here. The week began February 18 and will end February 25.

Better mailing means improved postal service. The postal service is the people's service. It is the greatest of public utilities and its efficiency of operation is dependent to a great degree upon close cooperation between postal workers and the public.

FIFTEEN FROM HERE AT PINEVILLE K. OF P. JUBILEE

Fifteen members of the Middlesboro Lodge No. 83, Knights of Pythias, attended the Diamond Jubilee celebration held Tuesday night in Pineville. Those present enjoyed talks by the following: A. C. Byers of Lexington on "Friendship"; J. M. Gilbert on "Charity"; R. N. Patterson on "Benevolence"; H. Clay Rice on "Patriotism." After the program refreshments were served by the Pineville lodge.

RETAIL PRICE OF EGGS DROPS TO 45 CENTS DOZEN

Warm weather which prevailed here for the past two weeks until yesterday has resulted in an increase in the quantity of eggs on the market and a corresponding decrease in price. Produce dealers say that the price has dropped ten cents wholesale. The retail price which was 55 and 60 cents per dozen is now down to 45 cents. Grocers say that if the cold weather continues the price will doubtless advance.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

BRIGHT SILVER

To keep silver bright after you have polished it, keep a piece of gum arabic in your silver drawer or chest.

STARCHED CLOTHES

All articles starched with boiled starch must be dried thoroughly, then made very damp and rolled tightly in a clean, dry cloth. They should stand a couple of hours before being ironed.

HEATING GLUE

Glue loses strength with frequent heatings; therefore heat only as much at a time as you think you will use.

THIN SILKS

You can restore the body in thin silks by dipping them in a weak solution of gum arabic.

Lace Over Silk

Fine thread laces are combined with satins and crepes and used over silk foundations for frocks.

Walsh is Miss Democracy's Fair Haired Boy Just Now

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Miss Democracy has a new sweetheart. A dashing, debonaire blade he is, from out the great Open Spaces of the Wind-Swept West. A lithe, graceful, eloquent gentleman. A cavalier of the sort that slays dragons and rescues langlishing maidens.

Small wonder, then, that a new spirit of hope and joy has quiskened the lagging pulses of Miss Democracy.

Maybe—maybe—Who knows? Oh, to be no longer a wall-flower! Oh, to lead the dazzy dance again!

So, with new words to the old dance tune, the full party harmony coming in heavy on the syncopated time, she sings.

"Oh, Walsh me around again, Tommy, Around! Around! Around!"

For Walsh, Thomas J. Walsh of Helena, Montana, is the new Lochinvar to whom Miss Democracy owes her new lease on life—and hope.

Walsh is the boy who, almost unaided, tunneled through the barrier of words and evasions to the hidden lair of the Great Oil Octopus.

Whether by fault or foolishness, the operations of the Octopus, he disclosed, had been made possible by his officials of the ruling administration—men at the very top in the Republican party organization. What history will know as the Great Oil Scandal—the end of which is not yet—resulted.

Her Candy Kid

And right there is where Miss Democracy's hopes come in. With the nation aroused over the disclosures, she expects a popular revulsion against Republican rule which will make her—whether from choice or necessity she doesn't care much with—the popular partner in the 1924 Presidential Cake Walk.

And as the boy who has made this possible, who stuck the cactus under the GOP howdah, twisted the elephant's tail and started what may become a political stampede, Tommy Walsh from Montana is today Miss Democracy's fair-haired pet, her Candy Kid!

Now don't misunderstand. Miss Democracy hasn't any matrimonial designs on Thomas.

She's awfully fond of him, but reasons of policy and such—Montana having only four electoral votes—put him on the ineligible list so far as becoming her presidential candidate is concerned.

But she'd keep him around, in case she gets back to the White House next year. In the cabinet, you know. Probably attorney general.

For eve nbefore he probed his ability in the present oil investigation, Walsh was recognized as one of the keenest legal minds in Washington. He has often been dubbed an Encyclopedia of Law, due to his ability to cite legal references and decisions from memory.

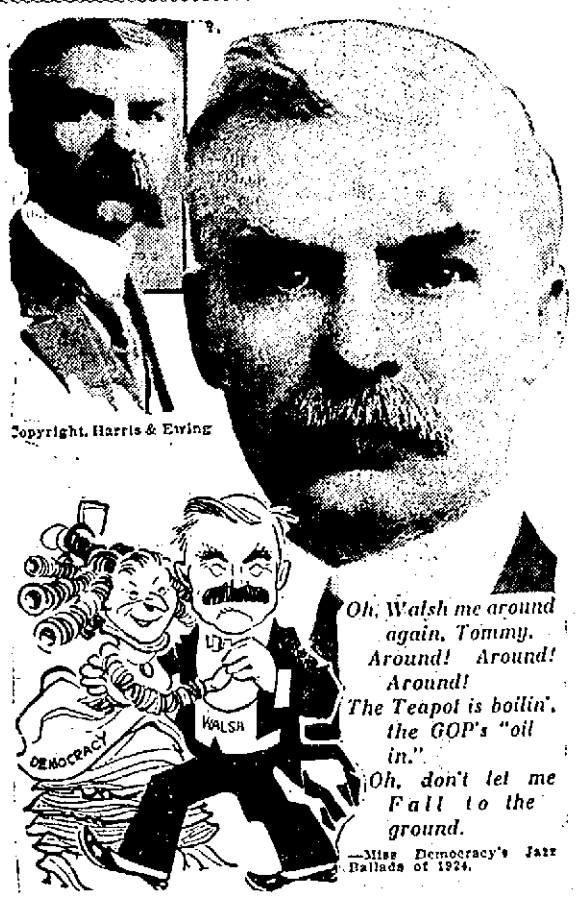
Popular in Society

In his office and at the Senate, Walsh is an indefatigable worker. Away from the office and the capital, he likes recreation.

He is fond of social life and is much in demand at dinners and parties among the official and social set of the city.

As an unattached male—he has been a widower several years—he solves the problem of many a hostess in making up her list. He is a light and graceful dancer, an engaging conversationalist and a courtly gallant.

Of slender, wiry build, medium height, cleanly cut features, Walsh is one of the most dapper of senators. His clothes are well tailored.



Oh, Walsh me around again, Tommy. Around! Around! Around!
The Teapot is boilin', the GOP's "oil in."
Oh, don't let me Fall to the ground.

—Miss Democracy's Jazz Ballads of 1924.

Senator Walsh, a year ago (upper left), and now. Typical of the change that seems to have come over the Montana senator with the charge of his leadership in the Teapot Dome investigation, is his new manner of trimming his mustache. Gone is the drooping, gracefully curling mustache, and in its place is the squared-off, carefully trimmed lip warmer.

His gold rimmed nose glasses swing from a black silk ribbon around his neck. His silver gray hair is flung upward in a saucy roach on the right side.

A former jarring note in the Walsh makeup—his long, luxuriant but drooping mustache of the sort known as "soup-strainer" or "rams-horn"—has been eliminated by his barber and he now affects the more modern clipper mustache.

WHERE IS FRANCE GOING? LIBERAL MIDDLE COURSE SEEN AS REMEDY

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Is France heading for a government of the extreme Right or of the extreme Left?

Is she ging to have a White dictatorship like Italy and Spain, or a Red dictatorship like Russia?

These are the vital questions that I come to France to study.

It is safe to say France will go neither red nor white.

She may go a step in the direction of strong one-man government by giving Premier Poincare extraordinary powers, but unless all signs fail, she will swing in the other direction in the Parliamentary elections of the coming spring by putting into power a coalition of the parties of the Left—notably the Radicals, the Republicans and the Socialists.

There are certain vital things about the present situation that to thinking Frenchman can get out of his mind:

1—The tremendous decline of the franc.
2—The heavy debt.
3—The huge deficit.
4—Resultant high taxes.
5—Resultant high cost of living.
6—Failure of the Ruhr invasion to produce theexpected revenue.
7—Fear of a revengeful Germany.
8—Necessity, therefore, for a huge French army which keeps the young Frenchmen out of productive employment.
9—Decreasing birthrate compared with the big one in Germany.

Party Divisions

Any country, when it is worried, blames its troubles on the government in power. And that is what one finds in France. The Royalists, insignificant in number, but powerful because of the cleverness and ability of men like Leon Daudet and Charles Maurras, say the remedy is to restore royalty.

Then there are the Communists and their organ, "Humanite," with a circulation of 250,000. But the French Communist movement in France is dying. There will be no fusion between Communists and Socialists.

Alexandre Millerand was made president of the "Bloc National," which he largely created. Raymond Poincare was put into the Premier's offices at the Quai d'Orsay by the same group. It is a coalition of a number of parties all of which are conservative and most of which represent the big business interests of France.

Opposed to them is the "Bloc de Gauches," the Left bloc, made up of the more liberal parties in temporary alliance with the Socialists. It is this bloc which expects to carry the next elections.

Poincare will then be succeeded as premier either by Artisde Briand or Edouard Herritt or Paul Painleve. Heriott, brilliant young mayor of Lyons, is the more likely choice.

Poincare Is Target

Recently the opponents of Poincare found there was a possibility of throwing him out of office. But they didn't do it because they knew Millerand would call upon Louis Barthou to form a cabinet and they didn't want the issue clouded.

They want Poincare to be the issue—Poincare and his mistakes, his high taxes, his venture in the Ruhr, his fertile promises about payment from the Germans and his confessed failure.

But don't make any mistake about it—a victory by the Left won't mean that France will leave the Ruhr.

A government of the Left would make a sincere effort to come to some real sane agreement with Germany, particularly if the republican elements are on top there. It would attempt to revive the entente cordiale with England, particularly if the Labor government were still in power there. It would not adopt such a stiff attitude toward Russia, particularly if Italy and England resumed relations with the Slavs.

It would work with England to make the League of Nations more powerful. It would seek to equalize the tax burden by going after the big interests which have managed to escape.
